CONTENTS

DECEMBER 1984 VOL. 9 NO. 12

Features

- 30 Staying in Control by KEITH NEELY. If the EMT in charge becomes unglued, the message to everyone on the scene is that there must be a good reason for doing so; chaos reigns.
- 39 Media Relations at Major Response Situations by ERIC J. ALLISON. A delicate balance must be achieved between refusing to answer questions and giving hasty or ill-conceived responses to the media.
- 43 Are You Ready: The Basics of Disaster Planning by CHARLIE D. MARLEY, JR. Disaster response requires a community to function as a cohesive unit, not as many separate, independent agencies.
- 46 Medical Communications and the Right to Privacy by CAROL J. SHANABERGER. The use of scanners as a source of information can result in both civil and criminal liability.
- 48 Treating Marital Stress by D. CHARLES WILLIAMS, PH.D. Since EMS personnel function in emotional extremes, they easily become oblivious to subtle problems within their marriages.
