FEATURES

- 37 The Incident Critique BY GARY P. MORRIS. Here is why incident critiquing can produce significant benefits when properly administered.
- 40 Writing the Multi-Casualty Incident Critique BY RICHARD A. NARAD. Critiquing a multi-casualty incident identifies mistakes and problems so that they can be corrected. This is one way future responses can be improved.
- 44 Catastrophe! Questions Paramedics Should Ask Their Supervisors BY DONALD E. DODSON. All levels of EMS must recognize and prepare themselves and other emergency service workers for catastrophes.
- 51 Why EMS Needs Physicians BY JOSEPH G. FERKO. As the level of sophistication of prehospital personnel has increased, the need for increased physician involvement has become more apparent.
- 54 Physician Talk BY MICHAEL FRANK, MD. As a rule, emergency physicians are good communicators, but why do they have such trouble with the radio?
- 58 Tracking the Wild Ambulance Fleet: Part II BY LOREN MARSHALL. Land-vehicle tracking is the hot new product in the navigation electronics market.
- 64 Backboarding the Standing Patient BY ROBERT ELLING AND JON POLITIS. There is frequently good cause to immobilize the "walking wounded's" neck and spine.
- 71 Fully Automatic vs. Shock Advisory Defibrillators BY KENNETH R. STULTS AND RICHARD O. CUMMINS, MD. The earlier a patient is defibrillated following the onset of cardiac arrest, the better the chance for survival.
- 74 Cardiology Practicum BY MIKE TAIGMAN AND SYD CANAN. An advanced approach to EKG interpretation can be rewarding to the EMT and the patient.
- 115 JEMS 1988 Buyer's Guide. This guide provides easy access information to help JEMS' readers in their 1988 purchasing decisions.

GOT YOU
COVERED...
COMING
GOING!

Maximum profitability requires maximum utilization of resources... and that means control!

The Resource Management System from RWI gives you that control. The System consists of two hardware and software modules that help your dispatcher cover every base. The Computer-Aided Dispatch module with on-line reservations makes scheduling and controlling vehicles and personnel a snap, and the Vehicle Tracking module displays an up-to-the-moment picture of every vehicle's status on an electronic map.
